Hutchinson hosts Prime Minister's announcement on Great British Energy

Hutchinson is proud to have hosted the British Prime Minister at our Widnes facility for the significant announcement regarding Great British Energy's plans for the future of renewable energy in the UK. As a leader in British engineering, we are honoured to be part of this pivotal moment that underscores our industry's role in driving forward sustainable energy solutions.

The Prime Minister's announcement highlights the enormous potential for offshore wind projects, which align perfectly with Hutchinson commitment to innovation and sustainability. We are excited about the opportunities this brings, particularly for the UK supply chain and job creation in the North West. This initiative promises to generate thousands of new jobs, providing a much-needed economic boost and fostering the next generation of skilled workers.

Hutchinson is dedicated to supporting the UK's transition to clean power. The development of offshore wind farms will significantly reduce our reliance on fossil fuels, decrease greenhouse gas emissions, and contribute to a more sustainable future. We look forward to playing a crucial role in these projects and ensuring that the benefits of clean power are realised across the country.

This announcement marks a significant milestone for Hutchinson and the broader renewables community. We are committed to leveraging our expertise and capabilities to support the successful implementation of these ambitious projects, driving innovation and excellence in the renewable energy sector.

“A fantastic day yesterday at Hutchinson with a visit from Sir Keir Starmer and Ed Miliband to announce the launch of GB Energy. The message and intent are inspirational, with huge potential for UK energy security, the UK supply chain, and consumer bills.

Immensely proud of showcasing our onshore tower production facilities and offshore activities, and of the engagement with our staff, particularly the discussions with our apprentices.”
